From many a mountain shrine; From folded leaf and dowy cup The mists above the morning ril Rise wide as wings of prayer;

The winds with hymns of prayer are loud, Or low with sobs of pain, The thunder-organ of the cloud, The dropping tears of rain

With drooping head and branches crossed One twilight forest grieves, Or speaks with tongues of Pentecost From all its summit leaves.

The blue sky is the temple's arch. The chorus of a prayer.

So nature keeps the reverent fram With which her years began, And all her signs and voices shame. The prayerless heart of man.

MODERN DETECTIVE II ORK.

To begin with, I'll say that detectives are divided into three general classes shadows investigators and ropers. When a man begins the business, he is put at shadowing. It is an excellent way to test him and see what stuff there is in him. If he will watch a house night after night in all sorts of weather, or a man day after day, without exciting suspicion, it is pretty safe to employ him reg ularly. A good shadow is an important. part of a detective force. In a great many cases of crime, there is no clew to the criminal, but only a suspicion. The shadow is told to watch such a man and see what he does, what sort of company he keeps, where he resorts; or he is told to watch a house, see who goes in and out, what the character of the inmates is, what hours they keep. Now, in order to do this, a man must have tact, intelligence, perseverance. He must not only not excite the suspicions of the suspected parties, but he must not excite the suspicions of the police. It is very awkward for a detective to give an account of himself to a policeman. While the policeman may be the most honest and faithful in the world, it endangers the case if he knows a detective is around, and mentions it casually to a brother policeman. You can see that to do his work well a shadow must be a man whose anpearance will not provoke comment or attract attention. You'd not make a good shadow. You're too tall: A very short man won't do. In fact a thoroughly commonplace-looking-man is the very best. He should be young and active. We have had office boys who developed considerable talent for that sort of work Sometimes a boy can be used where a man cannot. He can hang around a house and make the acquaintance of other boys in the neighborhood, and the criminal, who may be watching from inside the house for a chance to steal out unobserved, may think the coast clear when he sees that there is no one around except two or three boys playing marbles on the sidewalk. We had a case of this kind in Baltimore at the put a boy there. He was playing marbles when the man came out, and then gave the signal which resulted in his capture. But boys, as a rule, are talks with every one, and forms his con- the patrolman. clusions. He must be a man of greater intelligence than is necessary to make a good shadow. He reports the results of his investigations, and on this report is a shadow is put on a certain man, and an effort is made in that way to reach the truth in the matter. The preliminary investigator, in short, opens the way for private investigation.

The roper must, to speak plainly, 'rope' men in. He comes nearest to the dime-novel detective of any in the list, but he is a great way off from that romartic hero. The roper is simply a gentlemanly person, social, of good address, able to frame excuses for anything he may do or say, and able to turn the conversation in any way he pleases. He knowledge of men, must be an easy talker, but a better listener."

"Is a detective's life particularly dan-

Of course the bad received some 890 letters, most of them fact that a man succeeds in a daugerous piece of work is often the means of an increase of his salary. Why, it's like any other business exactly. Each man has his value. It won't do to work for a reward. Human nature is human nature, and when a man sees a big pile of meney coming as the result of fixing a crime on some man—well, it's often dargerous for that man, guilty br innocent. The work should be done for so much, whatever the result."

"What is the average life of a detective?"

Huding to his controversies with Judge Porter, Scoville disclaimed any intention to transgress the bounds of propriety or the rules of practice, but he should criticise the conduct of counsel when it merited criticisem, and threats of prosecution would not intimitate him. Cliting the cuisofour counsel upon the other side of bowing to the jury upon entering, Scoville said, "Sometimes it is three bows all round; sometimes more; nover less than three. It has paver been done by counse upon this side, and I do not hesitate to criticise the propriety of it."

Mr. Porter reviewed the argument of Mr. Davidge, pointing out its strong points. Ohio. Mr. Porter reviewed the argument of Mr. Davidge, pointing out its strong points. "Makee," Mr. Davidge had rightfully said, "was, in the presumption of law, a question for the Judge, not the Jury. Should the Judge decide, as the defense desired, that mailee was question of fact for the jury, he would overturn the law. He would create a precodent in this famous case which would inevitably be condemned through all time to come."

condemned through all time to come."

Mr. Scoville had objected that decisions in support of the prosecution's postulate were as antiquated as his (Porter's) style of oratory, "I never," said Porter, "imitated any man, and never commented on any one's oratory," "I never," said. Porter, "sat at the feet of that Gamaliel, as Guiteau did. Whether my manners and morals would have been improved is for others to say. Judging from the disciple who is before you he would searcely seem to be an appropriate instructor for youth."

scarcely seem to be an appropriate instructor for youth."

Proceeding to expound the law on the subject of malice, reading from the 1880 edition of Archibstal's "Criminal Practice," Porter dwelt upon the premeditation of Guiteau. Referring to his lyings in wait and to his dodging the footsteps of the President, he said: "Was this worthless vagaboud the man to be selected and inspired by God, a. cheat, a swindler, a creature of vilest hubit. He, then, is funior in the firm of Jesus Christ & Co, This murderer, tracking his victim at right, at church, at real-road station, everywhere, till the deed is done. But grant this bifectus pretension, and allow him the inspiration of Paul, which he inminually quotes, that does not protect, as it did not protect Paul from stripes and death."

Porter wolld on to say that all sugh the Prosident had died the Government still lived, and his successor was prosecuting his assassin.

"Yes," said Judge Porter, "under a misapprehension that the law was estronger than Guitoan. Guitoan seems to think that he's stronger than the law."

"I do not claim to be stronger than the law," at God Almighty is stronger than the law," stid Guiteau, sullenly.
"You will come before God Almighty presently," said Porter solemnly, Until then he onthy," and Porter solemny, Until then he would do well to refer but little to Him. He will feel soon what he has never felt bofore, the divine pressure in the form of a hangman's none. The prisoner had sworn on the stand that he was predestined to remove the President. He had forgotten to say he was also residentially the language for it. Speaking again. dent. He had forgotten to say no was also predestined to be hing for it. Porter then took up the authorities elted by the defense, pronouncing them either inference of the ported or bad law from obscure benches. Judge Porter concluded his masterly argument by reading the now famous letter of President Garileld to Judge Payna, in which he complimented and thanked him for brushing away the network of sophistress with which it has of late years been customery to develop the plea of threathy when set up in the country of the property of the position of the party when set up in the country of the plea of threathy when set up in the country of the plea of threathy when set up in the property of the plea of threathy when set up in the property of the plea of threathy when set up in the property of the plea of the please to develop the piet of imaginty when set up in Acouse-for office of the jurisdiction is com-pleto at the place where is yound is inflicted, and that an appreciation of the difference be-tween right and wrong is the correct test of insanity. FORTY-SEGOND DAY.

Mr. Davidge addressed the jury in behalf of the prosecution. He began by commonding the jury for its dignified deportment and pa-lient attention to the evidence throughout the trial. The assassid began a series of interrup-tions, but, finding he could not disconcert the elequent advocate, he gradually relapsed into minne.

"In the beginning," said Mr. Davidge, "it was sought to show that the prisoner was off his balance. Now the court tells you to dook for that degree of insanity that disables a man from knowing that what he was doing was wrong. This is the test you are to apply. Upon the question of inspiration, I think I will be able to show to your satisfaction how little-there is in this claim. The only question, the said, "was that of insanity." He then at the the prisoner had that degree of intelligence, legal knowledge and the moral sensowhich rendered him responsible for his acts. In a telling passages, is showed that the prisoner said, "was that of insanity." He then argued that the prisoner had that degree of intelligence, legal knowledge and the moral sense which rendered him responsible for his acts. In a telling passage-size showed that the prisoner rimmelr had the was to see the start weakness of Scoville's line of defense, and repudiated it, arguing in his own behalf that he was no intelligence, but a sand man, whose intellect and will had been dominated during a specified period of time, rendering him tresponsible for this particular crime. He then reviewed the circumstances of the or ime, and the victim and the criminal. His analysis of Guiteau's character was graphic and effective. "If," he-exclaimed, "I were to sum up the moral and intellectual qualities of this man, I should say that he had the daring of a vulture, combined. "We henry of a wolf." In speaking-of Guiteau's plan, he remarked upon his greater fear of the most than of the law, and exclaimed. "Wo must kay, to ome shame; that this estimate had a foundation. It rested," he added, "with the jury to show the world whether Güteau's opinion was well founded. If he lad feared the law as he feared, the mob, our martyred head and chief would be alive to-day."

Mr. Davidge took up in order the case of each member of the Guiteau's opinion was well founded. If he lad feared he law has he feared the mob, our martyred head in connection counter-évidence of the prosecution, summing up the force of this evidence had been offered by defense, and rected in connection counter-évidence of the prosecution, summing up the force of this evidence had been offered by defense, and rected in connection counter-évidence of the foundary of the member of the guite dence with the remark: "But the unanswerable testimony of oxperts settles the question how much effect this collateral insanity could have upon the mental condition of the prisoner. this must be distinguish between their and wrong:

Gintest interrupted once, and shouted:

I have slawlys been a Christi in man, and for six years have been strictly virtuous. Don't forget that, either.

Davidge continued: "There is not a single fact, or single jot or tittle, to show that tills present was not perfectly responsible forhis action on the 2d of July. The jury will find that the defense have carefully picked out and held up to view-everything in the entire career of this man which may be considered old or peculiar, and it is for you to consider how much value can be attached to this evidence, when you came to consider whether this man did not how on the 2d of July that it was wrong for him to kill the Chief Magistrate of the mation." Mr. Davidge then took up the Omeda Community, and apoke of Guiteau's wallowing there for six years.

Guiteau shouted: "And I say it is false, I didn't wallow. I'm just as pure as you are, Davidge, and don't you forget it."

Mr. Davidge discussed the evidence of Charles Thesday before the shooting, and who thought he appeared "a little off his balance." And this, mark you, "said Mr. Davidge," is the extent of his evidence as to that day. He was never asked if he thought he was unable to divinguish between right and wrong. Is it so very strange, "gentlemen; that this prisoner should have appeared queer, when at that very time he was carrying in his breast this monstrous crime?"

Forty Third Day. FORTY THIRD DAY.

Mr. Davidge resumed his argument for tho for the distance of the curve, was briefly over the more unimportant parts, he had marked emphasis upon the damaging testimony of John-W. Guiteau, who, he said, was a most unwilling winess against his brother, but who was colliged, as a man of truth and honor, to affirm the prison er's saitly and his hateful, domineering, egotistic temper. John Guiteau's testmony, at the time it was rendered, was universally commented upon as very bad for the defense, and the skillful use made of it by. Mr. Davides shows what importance the prosecution attached to it. This witness was from the very fast opposed to the plea of hereditary insanity, as it duched himself and his children as nearly as it did the prisoner. Hence he rendered the prosecution very material help in attacking this lime of defense. It is understood that he test here is not known. His description of the prisoner's own testimony was given in graphic sentences. He had been put on the stand, said Mr. Davidge, as a last hope, but, so fan from sustaning the defense, he had removed any doubt which fremained as to his sanity. He then commented on Guiteau's character as testified to by several of the witnesses for the prosecution, showing that he was a thorough scoundrel, whose insanity consisted in an abaurd idea of his own consequence, which led him to disregard all the rights of others which interfered with his own consequence, "He may be a crank," said the speaker, econfully, "but he is responsible enough to be hanged."

He proceeded to discuss the medical testimony, taking up the hypothetical question of the defense and claiming that its bases were not eight and was artifully incomplete and undar. Then he turned to the mispiration theory, "If he was inspired," said Mir. "Davidge, "its was from the revil—not from God. Substitute devil for God, and the meaning of much of this pressure is clear. Guiteau struggled against it as every man tempted of the devil struggles, but he did not resist. He succumbed, and sin brought forth death."

As the oracle drew his speech to a close the prisoner made several of his spiteful demonstrations, and singled out Corkhill for another trade of abuse quoting, as he has often quoted before, the action of the nulls of the gods. He said that they would, in their grinding, make alow but sure work of Corkhill.

Behind them were three ordinar; passenger cars. Five Wagner drawing-room cars completed the train. They were the Red Jacket, Shaxon, Vanderbit, Minnehaha and Empire, The Empire was the rear car. At Greenbush, on the opposite side of the river from Albany, the Wagner drawing-room car and became the last car of the train. The train was un charge of Conductor George Hanford, an old employe on the read. The conductor of the drawing-room cars was Mr. Taylor. Two stops were made—one at Hudson and the other at Foughtkeepsie. From this last point the train began to make up some of the lost time. A speed of at least forty miles an hour was maintained until the Spuyten Duyell Creek Station was reached. Here the engineer slowed down, and the frain suddenly came to a slop about midway between that station and the Kingsbridge Station. Something, it was said by the train stendants, was the matter with the air brake. For some reason it failed to work. It was then a few must have continued between five and ten minutes. Suddenly one shrill blast from a locomotive was heard, when the sound of grinding wheels from the rear grated harshly on the car. The next instant there was a shock which shivered the Idlewild to splinters, drove its heavy frame like a telescope into the Empire, and completely weeked that car in an instant. The disk indication that the Empire's passengers had of danger was the single whistle of the lecomotive of the local train, the Tarrytown express. The shock huried them from their seats, and they were flung along the car floor. The swived tonics, werenched irom their fastenings, were thrown after them and lay piled on top of the struggling occupants. A shower of glass came down from overhead, and the roof of the Empire was crushed in upon them by the weight of the Idlewild's root, which seemed to have been litted bodily, and shot forward upon that of the Empire. To add to the confusion the lights began to glimmer and the darkness to deepen. Nearly all the occupants found their way out through windows whose sashes had been shattered by the shock. The mose of the collision was heard half a mile sway, and the glare of the burning cars illuminated the country far around. A crowd of the residents of King Bridge and Spuyten Duyyil soon gathered. Axes were brought, and beroic endeavor's to chop a hole in the side of the Idlewild were made. Nearly all of the Idlewild's passengers were caught in the timbers, and were unable to move hand or foot. Their shricks were appalling. A new danger was meanwhile threatening the thousand persons in the vicinity. The locamotive of the Tarrytown express was imbedded in the wreck of the Idlewild, its headight a dozen feet within the car, a heavy head of ateam was on, a red-hot firewas-blazing in the fire-box, and there were grave doubts expressed by the engineer and fireman about the boiler resisting the treated on the strength of the results of the control of the car woon if grave doubts expressed by the engineer and fireman about the holler resisting the tremendous pressure brought to bear upon it. Water to quench the fire was called for. Then great shovelfuls of snow were piled into the furinace. The water-curriers ceased for a brief space to empty their pails upon the burning cars, and dashed their contents into the furnace. The dying persons in the ruins had to be abandoned to grapple with this danger, which promised death to so many of the living. The furnace fires were finally quenched, and attention was once more turned to the two burning cars, whose more solid timbers had by this time been caten away by the farred flames. Ten minutes had elapted since the accident. The last sound from the mitombed passengers had died away. Nothing was heard but the crackle of the fire and the shouts of the villagers, half mad with excitement at the thought of lumant beings dying before their eyes, and they mable to afford them succer. Suddenly, the idea of throwing snow on the burning cars was suggested by somebody in the throng. Hundreds of hands began to roll up highalts. #### OUR COUNTRY.

A Table Showing its Area by States

(Weshington Telegreen to the Chicago Times.). Mr. Honry Gannett, the geographer of the tenth census, has just issued a buildtin giving the areas of the several States and Territories by counties. The information furnished by given with greater detail, and presumably with ons census reports or other publications which have pretended to give it, and I have no doubt the general public, even that part of it which the general public, even that part of it which finds it convenient to get along without a great tical of really exact information, will find much of it interesting. There are few people, I take it, who have any very definite idea of the comparative size of the several States, Territories and districts of this glorious country of ours, and doubtless a good many tolerably well-informed persons will be surprised to see, how small some of our big. States really are when compared with our little Territories. For example, it may astonish-some to learn that Idaho is nearly as large as New York and Pennsylvants, and that we haven't a Territory in the world, save one, that isn't bigger than New England. Onto doesn't begin to be half as big as Wyoming, and Illinois would be lost in either Dakota or Montana, while the thirdeen original. States together are less than a third larger than Texas. For the purpose of showing the order in which the States and Torritories stand, when judged by their size, Lhave transposed Mr. Gannett's table, with the following result:

The total area of the United States as reported by the census of 1850 was 2,980,959 square miles. The census of 1860 made it 3,026,194, and that of 1870, which included the ported by the census of 1856 was 2,890,955 square miles. The census of 1860 made it 3,026,434, and that of 1870, which included the metry-acquired territory of Alaska, some 577,560 square miles, gave it at 3,603,894. The figures for the States, and such of the Territories as still retained the same boundaries, are the samily computation was made for either the eighth or nintit census, and s foot not appended to the table of areas in the report for 1870 states that the increase of the total area of 1880 over 1850 represents the territory acquired from Mexico, known as the Gadsden purchase. Another note says that "the land surface of the United States, 8,603,884 square miles, when increased by the water surface of the great lakes and rivers, brings the total area of the United States up to 4,000,000 square miles. But this, according to Mr. Gainett, who is a very careful calculator, is quite wide of the mark, since, without counting Alaska, he is only able to make it 3,025,600 square miles, which, minus the principal lakes, rivers and ponds, leaves us 2,970,000 square miles which, minus the principal lakes, rivers and ponds, leaves us 2,970,000 square miles of fair the to content himself with it, unless the Clarton-Bulwer resty is abrogated, in which event the Lord only knows what he'll do.

But a careful stade, of these figures, more than anything clse, will tend to convince one that there is indeed a world of country out West. In the ten prairie States, Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Illinots, foras, Visconsin, Minnesott, Missouri, Kansha and Nebraska, there are 616,775 square miles, only 10,818 of which are "water lots."

There-are, therefore, 605,940 square miles of more or less productive soil in this region, on the cultivated portion of which, in the year 1880, according to the reckoning of Mr. Roberts Proposition of wheat, 1,293.

WARM AND COLD BATHS.

The physiological effects of warm and cold baths are thus noted by a writer in an English medical journal :

Warm baths produce an effect moon the skin directly contrary to that which is brought about by cold water. The cutaneous vessels dilate immediately under the influence of the heat, and, although the dilation if followed by a contraction, this contraction is seldom excessive, and the ultimate result of a warm bath is to increase the cutaneous circulation. The pulse and respiration m both quickened in the cold bath.

The warm bath increases the temperature of the body, and, by lessening the heat, it decreases the call which is made upon certain of the vital processes, and simbles life to be sustained with a less expenditure of force.

While a cold buth causes a certain stiffness of the muscles if continued too long, a warm bath relieves stiffness and fatigue. The final effect of both hot and cold baths, if their temperature be modeuse the words of Braun, that "cold refreshes by stimulating the functions, heat by physically facilitating them rad in this lies the important differences between the cold-water system and the thermal mede of treatment."

It is well for the women of the house hold to remember that the pleasant evenings at home are strong antidotes to the practice of looking for enjoyment abroad, and seeking for pleasure in byand forbidden places; for relaxation and recreation will be indulged in somehow by most-men, and happy are they who find in the home circle the diversion they need. ## EXCITEMENT IN ROCHESTER.

The Commetten Caused by the State

An unusual article from the Rochester (N. .) Democrat and Chronicle was republished in this paper recently, and has been a subject of much conversation, both in professional circles and on the street. Apparently it caused even nore commotion in Rochester, as the following more commotion in Rochester, as the following from the same paper shows:

Dr. J. B. Henioh, who is well known, not only in Rochester but in nearly every part of Ancrea, sent an extended article to this paper a few days since, which was duly published, detailing his remarkable experience and rescue from what seeinged to be certain death. It would be impossible to enumerate the personal inquiries which have been made at our office as to the validity—of the article, but they have been so numerous—that further investigation of the subject was deemed an editorial necessity. With this end in view a representative of this paper called on Dr. Hemion, at his residence on St. Paul street, when the following interview occurred: "That article of, yours, Doctor, has existed quite a whirlwind. Are the statements—about the terrible condition you were in and the way you were rescued such as you can sustain?"

"Every one of them and many additional ones. Few people ever get so mear the grave as I sid and then return, and I am not surprised that the public think it maryelous. It was marvelous."

"This, then, is what you meant when you seld that more than one half the deaths which occur arise from Bright's disease, is it, Doctor?"

"Precisely. Thousands of so called diseases are torturing people to-day, when in relativities Bright's disease in some one of its many forms. It is a Hydra-headed monster, and the sughtest windows should strick terror to avery on, and It is a Hydra-honded monster, and the slightest symptonic should strike terror to every one who has them. I can look back and recall hundreds of deaths which physicians declared at the time were caused by paralysis, apoplexy, heart dis-case, pneumonia, malarial fever and other-com-mon complaints which I see now were caused by Bright's discare."

Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Fully satisfied of the truth and force of the Doctor's words, the reporter bade him good day and called on Mr. Wurner at his 'satisfied ment on Erchange street. At first, Mr. Warner was inclined to be retreent, but learning the information desired was about the atarming increase of Bright's disease, his manner changed instantly and he spoke very careastly:

"It is true that Bright's disease has increased wonderfully, and we find, by reliable statistics, that in the past ten years lis growth has been 250 per cent. Look at the prominent men it has carried off: Everett, Simner, Chies, Wilson, Carpenter, Bishop Haven and others. This is terrible and shows a greater growth, than that of any other complaint. It must be plain to every one that something must be done for check this 'Increase or there is no knowing where it may en'."

"Hundreds of thousands. I have a strik."

He had, various display the students what the indications of this terrible malady were. In order to draw the contrast between healthy and unhealthy fluids he had provided a viail the confignts of which were drawn from linear, 'and now, gentlemen, he said, 'as and unhealthy fluids he had provided a vial the contents of which were drawn from lis own person. And now, gentlomen, he said, as we have seen the unhealthy indications, I will show you how it appears in a state of perfect health, and he submitted has own fluid to the usual test. As he watched the results his countenance suddenly changed—his color and command toth but him, and in a trembing voice he said: "Gentlemen: I have made a painful discovery; I have Bright's discase of the kidneys," and in less than a year he was dead."

"You believe, then, that it has no symptoms of its own and is frequently unknown even by the person who is affluted with it?"
"It has no symptoms of its own and very often none at all. Usually no two people have the same symptoms, and frequently death is the first symptom. The slightest indications of any kidney difficulty should be enough to strike terre to any one. I know what I am talking about, for I have been through all the stages of kidney disease."

I thought there was little-hope and so did the dretors. I have since learned that one of the physicians of this cty pointed me out to a gentleman on the street one day, saying: "There goes a man who will be dead with n a year," I believe his words would have proven true if I had not fortilizefully secured and used the remedy now known as Warner's safe Kidney and Liver Cure."

"No, it caused you to manufacture it?"

"No, it caused me to investigate. I wont to the principal cities with Dr. Greg, the discoverer, and saw the hitraic anspectation and using if, and saw that Dr. Craig was unable, with—his facilities, to supply the medicipe-to-thousands who wanted it. I therefore determined, as a duty I owed humanity and the suffering, to bring it within their reach, and how it is known in every part of America, is household necessity."

CONGRESS.

The woman-suffrage question assumed a new phase in the Senate on the 9th inst., which may phase in the Senate on the 9th inst., which may indicate that it is to become a live issue in American politics. On Bayard's amondment to refer the Hear resolution to create a standing committee on woman suffrage to the Judiciary Committee on woman suffrage to the Judiciary Committee, the Republically voted "No" unanimously, and the Democrata voted "Ayo." Davis, of Hilmois, voted with the Republicanism Teller introduced a bill for the issue of certificates for futition deposited in the treasury, and Mr. Rollins an act for the organization of the Territory of Oldshoms. Mr. Sherman explained his 3-por-cent, bond bill, and cernestly urged its passage. Mr. Locardings in a proposition to devote to "general education all the moneys received by Internal Revenue Collectors from the manufacture of sole of liquiors. The President nominated Haj. George B. Schofield to be Lieutenant. Colonelof the Shift Cavairy, and Jack Wharton to be Marthal of the Eastern district of Louisiana. In the House-bills were introduced, by Mr. Rasson, for a commission to involving the he variff and internal revenue laws; by Mr. Caldwell, to repeal the arriversor-pensions act; by Mr. Page, to make the anniversary of the discovery of America': a legal holiday: by Mr. Page, to make the anniversary of the discovery of America': a legal holiday: by Mr. Page, to make the anniversary of the discovery of Mr. Smith, for the distribution of pure vaccine matter to the puople; by Mr. Henderson, for the construction of the Mississippi and Illuions causit; by Mr. Henderson, for the construction of the Mississippi and Illuions causit; by Mr. Henderson, for the construction of the Cassidy, be restore to the public domain land granted the Northern Pacific road.

In the Senate, on the 10th inst, Mr. Bayard.

granted the Northern Paville road. In the Senate, on the 10th inst., Mr. Bayard reported favorably the Morrill tariff-commis sion bill, and pronounced against the Garland sion bill, and proposition against the Garlandpressure. He said he favored removing the tar-fl question from the area of scotional feeling by selecting civilians for Commissioners, Mr. Beck opposed the Mornil bill as a scheme of monopolists to secure_d-lay. The House took preliminary action on the Usanton. From the debate it was evident that among Republicans as well as Democrats there is a disposition to reject Gov. Campbell's cerdificate he cause it assumes to decide not the tilicate because it assumes—to decide, not the question of election, but the question of quali-fication to serve as a member of the House. A large number of petitions, asking for a commission to inquire into the liquor traffic, were presented in the Schate on the 11th inst., were presented in the Schate on the 11th inst., nearly every Senator submitting one or more. My Morgan offered a resolution directing the Committee on Woman Suffrage to report a bill to annul any law conferring upon women-in Utah the right to vote. The Sherman funding bill was faken up, and Mr. Vest declared that the Democratic measure of last year would have saved the people $15,000,000 annually in interest; that the payment of the public deby would wipe out, national banks, and the latter do not in end to surrender their charters. Mr. Sherman reguled that the banks were subject to the will of Compress, and that it is fortunate that the bill of last year failed. Mr. Brows offered a resolution to supply each Senator.

that his bill of last year failed. Mr. Brows offered a resolution to supply each Senator, with a clerk. In the House, Mr. Orth offered a resolution instruct his the Committee on Civil-Service Reform to report a different mode of appointing committees. After a spirited contest the resolution was referred to the Committee on Rules. Mr. Haskell, as a question of privilege, presented a resolution dicalring that no Pclygamst. is entitled to admission to the House as a delegate, but the House as a delegate, but the House as a delegate, but the House have the transition of Territorial delogates, making p lygamists, inclinitely the Gen. Mr. Rebeson introduced a bil which-calls for a return to the Government of lands granted to railroads in those cases where the conditions of the grant have not been fulfilled.

A bill to authorize a bridge across the Missian whose of St. Charles, souri river, within five miles of St. Charles, was passed by the Senate on the 12th inst. Mr. Ingalls defended the Arrears-of-Pension set, and offered a resolution against its repeal, which was laid over at the request of Mr. Beck. Mr. Kellog introduced a bill to extend the limits of the port of New Orleans, and appropriating $200,000 to improve the harbor. 'A communication was presented from the Chicago Historical Society, asking cooperation in the celebration of the two lundredth anniversary of the discovery of the mount of the Mississipp by La Salle. A prolonged debate took place on the 3 per cent. Junning bill. Mr. Plumb renewed his amendment requiring the todemption of —sall United States bonds from the treasury funds in excess of $100,000,000. In the House, Mr. Bayue, introduced a bill to sweep away all the bank taxes, and Mr. Browne a measure for was passed by the Senate on the 12th inst the bank taxes, and Mr. Browne a measure for the issue and exchange of fractional treasury notes. An appropriation of $54,00.0 for work on the consus was passed. Mr. Browne offered, a resolution calling on the Secretary of the Interior for a statement of the arr required for pensions during the next quarter century. Both houses adjourned till Monday,

PROFITS OF LONDON JOURIALS. When a stamp duty was enforced upon advertisements, the London Times paid £70,000 in one year (1830) to the Government. If this exaction had been continued, as well as the penny stamp each paper, the Times, on its present sale and its present number of advertisements, would have had to pay the Government over £450,000 a year, I am not in a position to say what the in come of the Times is, but taking Mr. Grant's figures for advertisements, and a minimum sale of 70,000 copies, its returns amount to quite £1,036,000. Touching the profits divided on the other journals, the following figures, while they are not authoritative me pretty generally accepted in journalistic circles as approximately correct: Daily Telegraph, £120,600 a year; Standard, £65,000; Daily News, £30,000; Morning Post, £10,000.
